About the Program

The modern humanistic ideal of a well-rounded citizen of our nation and our world emphasizes a broad overview of culture, politics and society. The Hertog Scholars Program is a critical review of political philosophy, comparative literature, political economy, and American history, government, and culture - explored through close readings and discussion of enduring texts.

Course Feedback, Fall 2016:

On the overall impression of the courses:

"It was one of the most fascinating, informative courses I have ever taken."

"While the reading is challenging, and ends up taking up most of my time, this course has opened my eyes to the origins of themes in modern writing and visual storytelling. I've formed cohesive friendships within the cohort and look forward to Fridays as a seven-hour session of intellectual invigoration."

"It is an amazing course that strengthened my writing, speaking, and analytical skills. Living and learning in NYC puts us in a bubble of sorts. While we learn about other cultures, we do not have a grasp of what the American lifestyle is to others (the silent majority that voted in the past election). By engaging in a dialogue, my professor taught us how many other sides there is to the story and why our political debates get so heated, everyone is speaking from their own frame of reference."

Given all that you learned as a result of this course, what do you consider to be most important?

"How to become a stronger writer and use literary analysis."

"Critical thinking: the ability to always look for the other side, find the flaws, the extremes, the distortions."

Additional Comments

"He will shred your mind to pieces and make the pieces make sense."

"Professor Staloff is by far one of the best-- if not THE best-- professor I've ever had. He is incredibly intelligent and great at what he does. He makes every class engaging and I always learn much more than I expect in each new class."
