INTERVIEW QUESTIONS BY INDUSTRY
INTERVIEWS 101

A job interview is one of the most critical parts of the job search. Strengthening your interview skills and effectively preparing for one is critical in understanding how to best present yourself and your skill set for future employers.

GENERAL TIPS

RESEARCH

Visit Vault or Glassdoor to read about the interview process (what is the format—one-on-one or committee—and the types of questions that might be asked). Visit the company website and search for articles on the company to learn more about them so that you can learn what they value. This way, you can speak to why you are passionate about working for them and what you find most appealing about the company's vision.

DRESS TO IMPRESS

You want to make a good first impression, and your appearance is the first thing the interviewer will notice on the day of. Do you fit the culture at their company (e.g. are you dressed for a startup or are you dressed for a corporate position)? Make sure to conduct your research beforehand so you know the appropriate way to dress for the interview/industry. Find out how you can dress for success for your next interview in this helpful blog post from our Macaulay Career Development Blog. The Balance Careers also has a great in-depth outfit guide on what to wear (and what not to wear) depending on the type of job and company!

BE YOURSELF

An interviewer can always tell when someone is trying to tell them what they want to hear. The purpose of the interview is for both parties to get to know each other. Will this be a good fit? Answer questions honestly without giving away more information than necessary.
PRESENT CONFIDENCE

You want to make sure that you highlight your best characteristics and knowledge. Confidence comes in the way you approach the interview and the way that you answer their questions. This is why it is important to practice, practice, practice. Visit your Career Center on campus or reach out to the Macaulay Career Development Office to schedule a mock interview. To schedule an appointment, please contact Gianina Chrisman, Associate Director of Career Development, at gianina.chrisman@mhc.cuny.edu or Jamie Ruden, Career Program Coordinator, at Jamie.Ruden@mhc.cuny.edu. It helps to have constructive criticism on your interview skills. Even better, record it. This will help you see if you’re fidgeting, saying “um” too much, or doing any other behaviors that you want to minimize during an interview.

AND, SMILE

You’re already halfway there. Being chosen for the interview means that they believe you are qualified for the position. Now, they want to confirm your qualifications and, most importantly, they want to see if you’re the right fit. Will they want to work alongside you for the next 3-6 months or 3-6 years (depending on the position you’re applying for)?

QUESTIONS

Always have questions that you want to ask your interviewer. Prepare at least two beforehand and one question that you formulate during the interview (that demonstrates that you were listening).

• Don’t ask about salary/compensation.

• Do ask questions that you would value the answer to (e.g. Are there any concerns that I can address? What is your management style? What do you think are the most important qualities that would make someone be successful at this position?—Then show them how you’re a good fit).

COMINGS AND GOINGS.

When you walk into an interview, you should smile and firmly shake hands. When you end the interview, ask for business cards, exchange pleasantries, and shake hands as you leave again. Express what a pleasure it was to meet them and that you hope to hear back from them soon. Within 24-48 hours, you should send them a thank you note. See tips for writing professional thank you notes on our Macaulay Career Development Blog!
ADDITIONAL TIPS

• Take notes: Taking quick short-handed notes helps to remember the questions that are being asked or important comments that the interviewer made that you might include in your thank you note. Do not take lengthy notes where you bury your head and never look up during the interview.

• Sweaty palms: Keep a napkin in your pocket that you can use quickly before shaking hands.

• Dry mouth: You can ask for a glass of water before the interview. Take quick short sips during the interview to wet your palate before you speak.

• Questions you weren't expecting: If you don’t know how to answer a question immediately, it’s ok to ask them for a few seconds to think about it, and then give them a thoughtful answer. But, only take a few seconds. No one likes awkward long pauses.

• Forgot to mention something? Use the thank you note to address any concerns that were expressed by the interviewer—assure them that you’re the right candidate—or information that you feel is important for them to know.

04. Why should we hire you (over another candidate)?
05. Where do you see yourself five years from now? Ten years?
06. What are your goals?
07. Describe your ideal company, location, and job.
08. What type of work environment do you prefer?
09. I’m concerned that you don’t have as much experience as we’d like in....
10. How do you define success and how do you measure up to your own definition?
11. What are you passionate about?
12. Why did you choose your major? Your college?
13. Which classes in your major did you like best? Least? Why?
14. Of which three accomplishments are you most proud?
15. What motivates you the most in a job?
16. What job-related skills have you developed?
17. Do you prefer to work under supervision, or on your own? What kind of boss do you prefer?
18. What do you worry about?
19. How do you deal with pressure or stressful situations?
20. Are you able to work on several assignments at once? How do you prioritize your work?

ABOUT THE COMPANY

• Why do you want to work at our organization/company?
• What do you know about our organization/company?
• How does your college education or work experience relate to this job?
• What changes would you make if you came on board?
• What do you see as the role/responsibilities of this position/a good leader/etc?
• What do you see as the most difficult part of this position?
• What do you think it takes to be successful in an organization/company like ours?
• If you were hiring someone for this position, what would you look for?

ABOUT A SITUATION
• Tell me about something you did—or failed to do—that you regret.
• Tell me about a situation where your work was criticized.
• What was the toughest decision you ever had to make?
• Tell me about a challenge or conflict you’ve faced at work, and how you dealt with it.

OTHER

- What good books have you read lately?
- What are your hobbies/outside interests?
- Who has inspired you in your life, and why?
- Who are your role models, and why?
- What do you like to do outside of work?
- Is there anything else you’d like us to know?

ASK QUESTIONS

You should also be prepared to ask the interviewer questions. Pick questions that will demonstrate your interest in the job and the company. This might include commenting on the news you learned from the company website, and then asking a question related to it. Don’t ask about salary/compensation.

- What do my day-to-day responsibilities at this job look like?
- What do you appreciate the most about working here?
- How will my responsibilities and performance be measured? By whom?
- Could you explain your organizational structure?
- What computer equipment and software do you use?
- What is the organization’s plan for the next five years?
- Are there any concerns that I can address?
- What is your management style?
- What do you think are the most important qualities that would make someone be successful at this position?
- What kinds of assignments might I expect the first six months on the job?
- In what ways is a career with your company better than one with your competitors?
- What are the next steps from here? (This question is used at the end of an interview if the interviewer has not indicated what will happen next).

KEY TAKEAWAYS

JOB INTERVIEWS ARE SPECIFIC AND UNIQUE.

Job interviews vary by industry depending on the duties, qualifications, and skills required so it is critical that you have a good understanding of what exactly recruiters are looking for. It is important to master not only general interview questions, but also industry-specific ones. This is especially key when your industry has its own unique interview type and process, such as the technical interview for computer science related jobs.

LOOK AT BOTH INDUSTRY-WIDE AND JOB-SPECIFIC QUESTIONS.

Industry-wide questions offer a useful overview of the general ideologies, new developments, industry knowledge, and certifications required for candidates applying for similar positions. Job-specific questions offer a more detailed picture as to your potential job responsibilities and the technical knowledge you need to master.

DO YOUR OWN RESEARCH.

This guidebook is just a starting point. Be sure to research on your own as well! Great sites to explore further for interview questions and tips include The Balance Careers, Muse, Betterteam, Workable, and Glassdoor. You should also look for industry-specific sites for job search advice and interview preparation tips.
